of the two top candidates in the three-cornered senatorial race that the result will be officially known.In the results in Rock county Cunningham leads out by the narrow margin of sixty six votes over Whittet his nearest competitor. Cunningham's total is 1285 and that of Whittet 1219 and Gette is third in the race with 976. Under the law Gette's second choice votes will go to either Cunningham or Whittet and this will play an important part in the final outcome.

It will be up to Walworth county to decide the nomination and early returns from that county show Whittet is running ahead of both Cunningham and Gette. The Elkhorn Independent this morning stated that ten precincts which included Elkhorn and Delavan gave Whittet 430. Cunningham 386 and Gette 213. Whitewater gives Whittet 168. Cunningham 140, and Gette 77. Darien gave Whittet 65, Cunningham 22, and Gette 20. The following is the table

Afternoon Reports.

Elkhorn, Sept. 4.—Incomplete returns from the county show thatWhittet may have a lead of 150 over Cunningham his nearest competitor in the fight for state senatorship of the 22nd district. The canvas of the ballots will take place Friday.

Should this report from Walworth county be correct Whittet would have a lead on the combined vote of the two counties. This means that the second choice votes will decide the issue at stake. Just what effect this will have is doubtful as far as learned there was but a small sprinkling of second choice voting throughout the county as a whole.RICHARDSON NAMED AS THE CANDIDATEDefeats North and Kennedy in the First Assembly District Contest by Over a Hundred.M. P. Richardson will be the republican nominee in the first assembly district as the result of the primaries.

His total vote was 637, which was 131 more than that of North his nearest competitor, who had a total of 506.
Kennedy was third with 296. North came into Janesville with a good vote but was defeated in the city. The following is the table of the vote in the various precincts:

Court is Given Heavy Vote
And Wins Over Smith
And Strong.Charles D. Rosa of Beloit, formerly judge of the Beloit municipal court, was easily nominated for assembly on the republican ticket in the second district of Rock county. His total vote in 20 out of 21 districts in the county was 652 against G. Strong's 406 and Simon Smith's 357. Rosa's strength extended throughout the district and nearly every precinct gave him a substantial plurality. Rosa's showing came as a surprise to the majority of county politicians who expected Simon Smith, the present assembly man, to poll a better vote.The vote in the second district in Plans, Rode Away in an Automobile.New Orleans, Sept. 4.—Three bandits plentifully supplied with high explosives and an automobile lay in wait east of here last night for a New Orleans and Cincinnati express on the Louisville and Nashville railway.

When they heard the puffing of a locomotive they set their holdup in motion, but after they had halted the locomotive they found it was hauling a long line of freight cars instead of express and passenger coaches.
Covering their retreat with leveled guns the men made off in their automobile.TWELVE MISSING IN

Park.Los Angeles, Sept. 4.—Twelve persons including one woman and the six children of S. J. Zjardie, a wealthy summer resident, have been missing since the outbreak of the flames that destroyed the entire amusement section of Ocean Park. Soldiers and police guarding the ruins today expressed the belief that all had lost their lives. H. F. Locke, restaurant cashier, leaped to death off the Frazier pier. The town still is under martial law. Bayonet studded lines of citizens, soldiers, and police are protecting the immense piles of personal property thrown out of burning buildings last night. Approximately 10,000 men are clearing railway rights

FEAR CONVICTS MAY
AGAIN BEGIN RIOTSPeace Restored at Michigan Prison
By Presence of Militia, But Unruly Spirit May Not Be Suppressed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 4.—Although the officials of the Jackson prison declare they believe the presence of the state troops has cowed the unruly convicts who participated in yesterday's riot, there is a feeling in prison circles that almost anything is liable to happen within the next forty-eight hours. Warden Simpson says he will longer rely on a "bull pen" in which to house his so-called "bad men," but intended that those who refused to behave should be either locked up in the cell room or handcuffed to the grating until they decided to be "good." The liberation of convicts who declared they were ready to obey the prison code of laws was expected to be an important part in today's developments. Adjutant General Roy C. Vanderhook and five companies of the national guard are ready for emergencies.The state penitentiary scene of yesterday's rioting, today was almost as quiet as a cemetery. Only the presence of the soldiers and small groups of spectators' lingering outside the "dead line" indicated the unusual.
Warden Nathan F. Simpson, and members of the prison board of control, declared the revolt of the convicts had been effectively crushed.

San Francisco, Calif., Sept. 4.—Yesterday's primary election, which gave the progressive party its first opportunity in California to test its strength assured the Roosevelt-Johnson organization in control of the state convention that is to be composed of delegates of the nominees.
This means that the republican electors pledged to Roosevelt will go on the official ballot as republican candidates.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

White River Junction, Vt., Sept.
4.—The close race between the three parties, the republican, democratic and progressive in yesterday's election was emphasized today in the revision of the returns of the vote for governor.The returns from all but thirty-one small towns in this state are as follows: Allen B. Fletcher, republican, 23,599; Harlan B. Howe, democratic, 18,464; Reverend Frazer Metzger, progressive, 14,204; Kermit F. Smith, prohibitionist, 1,429; Fred W. Suiter, socialist, 1,010.Failure of the republican candidates for governor to obtain a majority for the first time in the history of the state in an election preceding
a presidential election, will necessitate the selection of the state chief executive by the legislature.It is expected that the republicans will have a substantial majority in the legislature, although there are eighty-one towns yet to report on the vote for representatives.The strength of the progressive vote was a feature of the election.
The democrats also increased their vote over two years ago.In the local contest for superior judgeship, Miss Lucy Goode White, a newspaper writer, and a prominent socialist was nominated.Failure of the republican candidates for governor to obtain a majority for the first time in the history
of the state in an election preceding
a presidential election, will necessitate the selection of the state chief
executive by the legislature.It is expected that the republicans
will have a substantial majority in
the legislature, although there are eighty-one towns yet to report on the vote for representatives.The falling off on the republican vote was marked. Indications were that a great part of the defection went to the progressives, although the democrats also gained a few. The result of the election is greatly encouraging to the progressive party of the state. Both progressive and democratic leaders profess to see good in the results and a good prospect to defeat the republicans in the presidential election in November in Vermont.Additional returns in yesterday's election compiled and revised today from all but 14 small towns for governor: Allen M. Fletcher republican, 20,000; Howe, democrat 19,462; Metzger progressive 15,070; Smith prohibition 1,433; Suiter socialist 1,042.If the proportionate gain or loss is maintained in the remaining towns it is figured that the total vote in Vermont the three leading candidates will be Fletcher 26,100; Howe 20,100; Metzger 15,550.

Is Satisfied.

Seagirt, N. J., Sept. 4.—The fact that the democrats more than held their own in Vermont, a republican state and also made substantial gains means business throughout the country," said Governor Woodruff Wilson today commenting on the election results in Vermont.The governor said the big democratic vote was "very gratifying."It was difficult, however, he said to analyze the results in Vermont on any comparative basis."One thing is sure," added the governor, "the democrats did not lose any votes to the new party and the republicans lost."The results are certainly encouraging." The governor said he was "greatly pleased" to notice the favorable vote in Ohio on the constitutional amendment proposing the initiative and referendum. He also manifested much interest in the primary vote in New Hampshire and Wisconsin.His refusal was made public when he was addressing the state progressive convention, although the delegates were not in a position to know the full significance of his words.

support from republicans of Missouri was rejected yesterday by Colonel Roosevelt, it was learned today, on the terms under which it was tendered.

would be behind him in his fight for the presidency.His refusal was made public when

STREET IS REPAIRED AT SLIGHT EXPENSE

North Bluff Street Put in Good Condition From Railway Tracks to the City Limits.

At very little expense to the city North Bluff street has been repaired and placed in good condition from the railway tracks to the city limits. Before Superintendent of Streets Mittimore undertook its improvement it was very rough and badly worn, the macadam, or near macadam, having been constructed of stone of different sizes which had not been passed through the stone crusher or graded. The large pieces loosened and had worked to the top, and the road-bed was rapidly going to pieces. Expensive re-construction seemed necessary. The problem was solved by running the steam roller, heavily spiked, over the macadam. This broke up a large proportion of the large stones, threw the others out so they could be removed, and packed the street firmly. A few small loads of crushed stone were sufficient for the top dressing. The roads extending north from Bluff street and Washington street are soon to be macadamized by the county.

FORUM HELD FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

High School Literary Society Held Special Meeting This Afternoon to Discuss Business Matters.

A special meeting of the Forum-Literary society was called by President Stanley Judd this afternoon at the close of school. Several new matters were brought up, one being that of securing a new critic, to succeed Prof. Donald McMurray, who held the position last year. No definite plans have yet been made, but all the members are planning on a very successful year. Several members have left by graduation, and but few new ones will be required to make the full membership of twenty-five. The resolution which was brought up by the school board, allowing the societies to be run on a scholarship basis, was discussed and strong arguments were brought up against it. The first regular meeting will be on Monday next at 7:15. This meeting will be for the purpose of electing new officers for the coming year.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE AT CALORIC PLANT

Local Factory Resumes Capacity Operation After Partial Shut-down for Repairs.

The Caloric fireless company resumed capacity operations this week after a partial suspension of work necessitated by the addition of new improvements. A new battery of boilers furnishing 125 horse power and doubling the power of the factory has been installed. In addition cement fire walls have been erected especially for the protection of the coal supply, a cement platform has been built at the interurban tracks, new cement steps have been erected at the entrance and other needed repairs and alterations accomplished. Six weeks have been consumed in the work and the majority of the force employed in the manufacture of the company's product have been engaged in the repair work.

It is understood that the board of directors are contemplating a substantial increase in the capital stock of the company.

PROTEST IMPROVING ON DIVISION STREET

Owners of Abutting Property Claim That Benefits Will Not Equal Expense of Opening The Street.

Protests against the proposed opening and improving of Division street from East Milwaukee street to North First street were made to the City Council by owners of property abutting on the street at yesterday afternoon's meeting. C. L. Miller, local manager for the Wisconsin Telephone Company, contended that the benefits resulting from the opening would not be equal the cost of the work. Attorney M. O. Mouat, on the behalf of E. B. Corners petitioned the Council to reconsider its plans of improving the street and the apportionment of the expense of the property owners. The assessment on Mr. Connor's property for the improvement is $418, and his attorney claims that this exceeds by far the benefits that will accrue from it. He thought that the city should pay the greater part of the expense if the contemplated improvement is made. A. Summers entered an objection to paving the street with brick.

Objections to the plans of improving Garfield Avenue from Clark street to Carrington Avenue, and Vista Avenue north from Garfield Avenue to Logan street were presented by Attorney Otto A. Oestreich, who appeared for the owners of abutting real estate. He presented a petition asking that something superior to gravel be put on the street, suggesting a top dressing of fine crushed stone. No protests were made against the improvement plans for Jefferson Avenue from Oakland to Ruger Avenue or on South Third street from Garfield Avenue.

The plans and specifications for the proposed work were accepted.

Attorney Arthur Fisher presented the petition of the Misses McCullough and Miss Harriet E. Lindsay for the vacation of an alley, having made the necessary correction in its text.

The name of "Dean Park" was given by the Council to the piece of land deeded to the city bounded on the north and east by Milwaukee Avenue, on the south and west by Vernon street, now called Court street.

The petition of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway for permission to lay four more tracks on St. Mary's Avenue was granted.

Dr. Hartman Answers Questions About the Revised Pe-ru-na

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

In response to a great many queries I wish to make public statement concerning the sale of Pe-ru-na.

No, we are not selling as much Pe-ru-na as we used to. The reason for this the change in the formula of Pe-ru-na.

The patent medicine business is very peculiar and particular. A person who has been in the habit of taking patent medicine will notice very quickly the slightest alteration in color, taste or effect. It does not look as it used to, or smell as it used to, or have exactly the same taste as it used to. It does not feel exactly the same in the stomach as before. The medicine will be promptly returned to the drug store and a new bottle demanded.

All this I knew before I changed the formula of Pe-ru-na, which I did six years ago, but did not realize the difficulty of overcoming the people's notions on this subject.

I made a change in the formula of Pe-ru-na. Quite a radical change. A change that altered the color and the taste and somewhat the medicinal effect of Pe-ru-na. I did this believing it was the best thing to do under the circumstances.

Immediately the change appeared, the people began to complain of Pe-ru-na. They generally thought the druggist was to blame, that their bottle of Pe-ru-na had been tampered with. This made bad feelings between the users of Pe-ru-na and the druggists. The druggists in some cases became irritated and angered and made complaint to the wholesalers and manufacturers. Thus the trade was temporarily in an uproar.

After a year of explanation the trade quieted down and the new Pe-ru-na took its place in the drug stores as a popular household remedy. And yet it has not attained the popularity that the other Pe-ru-na had. Changing the formula of Pe-ru-na was equivalent to introducing a new medicine into the drug trade, an extremely difficult thing to do now-a-days.

Pe-ru-na as it is made today is a very excellent remedy for catarrh and general catarrhal ailments. It is for sale in all drug stores and has a slight laxative effect, very much needed in these days. It seemed to me that it was in many ways a better remedy than before. Yet in spite of all explanations there is a considerable demand for the old Pe-ru-na as it is used to be made.

I have authorized the formation of a company to manufacture it, under the trade name of Ka-tar-na. The Ka-tar-na Co. is located in Columbus, Ohio, and stands ready to supply the trade with the old-line formula of Pe-ru-na under the name of Ka-tar-na.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—Col.

James N. Allison, chief commissary of served in the ranks of that command until the end of the civil war. In 1867

From 1871 until 1890 Col. Allison was Worth of Clothes.

The influence of clothes must continue to be, as it has been from the beginning of history, either "sacred or profane," a foremost factor in those forces by which man's destiny is guided. His health and comfort, aims and purposes, social standing and business prosperity; everything indeed that makes his life worth living may be affected by it in directions never dreamed of by the tailor who, if he does not actually make the man, is largely instrumental in making what he is.

Wild Red Rice.

In Senegal red rice grows wild. The fields in which it grows are inundated regularly by the Senegal or by its affluents, and in measure as the tide rises the rice plant rises above the flood. The grain is very red and very dry and hard. It swells in the water and as it swells loses some of its rich color. It is very nourishing and requires no cultivation.—Harper's Weekly.

CONDITIONS IN MEXICO.

Just why the American government refuses or neglects to protect her citizens in Mexico, is a question which nobody seems able to answer.
Matters have been going on from bad to worse ever since Diaz was driven from the country, and the rebellion is no nearer under control today than when it first broke out.

The success of any republic depends upon the ability of the people to govern themselves, and this the Mexican lacks in large degree. Every little province has a leader who aspires to be president, and so the war goes merrily on.

In the meantime the American citizens are without protection, and thousands of them have been robbed of everything they had, and then compelled to leave the country. The city of Juarez, Mexico, is right across the Rio Grande river from El Paso, Texas.
Juarez is the capitol of one of the Mexican states, and being so near the border, the city has attracted a good deal of attention. Mr. J. C.
Wilmeth, formerly of the Gazette, and now manager of the El Paso Herald, writes the following interesting letter to relatives. It will be noticed that the people who are in the midst of the fray are not at all satisfied with conditions. It might be well to let Nicaragua alone, for a few days, and help our own people nearer home.
Mr. Wilmeth says:

"Things are getting to be more peaceful down here. The Mexican rebels have been chased out of Juarez again, and the federal marched in this time without a battle. Everything has been tied up while the two forces threatened one another. The rebels have robbed the country and destroyed much that they could not carry. About 80 to 150 miles south of Juarez are several colonies founded by Mormons from Salt Lake City, twenty-five years ago."

Displeased the Widow.

A Philadelphia traveling man, having gone upon that journey for which there is no return ticket; his many friends of the road consulted together as to the remembrance to be sent by them, and finally decided upon a design which was not only original, but which they considered peculiarly appropriate. They never could understand why the widow would not receive the beautiful suit case, made of white flowers, with the words, "His last trip," in purple violets, on one side.

wants intervention—the results would be serious—but if Washington had sent out word that Americans in Mexico must be respected, and that any losses caused by Mexican revolutionists will be followed up by the United States government there would have been no trouble. As it is now the American government is a laughing stock all through Mexico, and Americans who go in on business in the next few years will feel the effects.
Mine superintendents will be in peril of their lives, trying to boss gangs."

THE MARY ANN LAW.

The beauties of the primary law, with the Mary Ann attachment, were fully appreciated yesterday, and the law itself, with all its arbitrary features, accomplished all that was expected of it by the man who conceived it and foisted it on the state.

The few voters who took interest enough to vote, discovered that the much-flaunted "independence," which they were supposed to enjoy, was a snare and delusion. The straight ticket, which they were compelled to use, if they voted at all, gave them no choice, and many men who wanted to support Karel for governor, and rebuke the present reckless administration, could only help him by declining to vote the state ticket.

The two men nominated for the assembly in Rock county, have always been La Follette shouters, and their success at the polls is evidence of the work of the political machine which controls the state.

La Follette wants the legislature, and as he has the only organization in the state, and a primary law to aid in controlling the independent voter, he found no trouble in carrying out his wishes.

If his party continues in power the state university will be a prominent factor in the next legislature, and taxis will climb as never before.

The second choice, or "Mary Ann" amendment, encouraged his candidates to pool their issues, and this was done, in many cases. This insured success and held the legislature in line.

The independence of the average voter is shown by his spirit of supreme indifference and the primary law was intended to take advantage of this spirit, and it does it to the queen's taste. The law is more pernicious than the income tax, because it is responsible for perpetuating in control the worst political machine that ever cursed a state.

The man who aspires to office is compelled to humiliate himself by crawling on his belly and spending good money, to find in the end that unless he has the endorsement of the czar, that his efforts are of no avail.
These conditions will continue, until we, the people, wake up to the situation.

If the Standard Oil company contributed to Roosevelt's campaign in 1904, there was no law against it, at that time, and the colonel was as well aware of the fact as Mr. Archbold.
It was the customary thing, before we became politically pure, for corporations to contribute freely for campaign expenses. There is no argument, on the part of the colonel, in calling Mr. Archbold a liar.

Senator Cummins of Iowa is the busiest man in the state. He is trying to belong to the progressive and republican parties, at the same time.
He proposes to vote for Roosevelt and support Taft, and all on account of the same political bee that is bothering Senator La Follette, namely, the chance to lead some party in the campaign of 1916. The fences are lined with patriots this year.

In spite of the worst mixed up political campaign that the nation ever experienced, the outlook for business is promising, and with a bumper crop there is every reason to believe that easy money will prevail throughout the winter. The tariff is no longer an issue, and reform has practically exhausted its resources. If there are any frills yet to be exploited, the business world is not alarmed.

The public schools would doubtless be a farce without text books, but a great many parents who are called upon just now to finance the 1912 brand, are wondering why so many changes are necessary. There ought to be a way discovered to market last year's vintage.

Odd Case of Friendship.

At the present time a most unusual case of affection between a domed and a comparatively wild animal is to be witnessed at the little English hamlet of Spoonley, near Market Drayton.
On the farm of Mr. William Woodburn for a week or two past, a small rough-somewhat vicious terrier from the farmstead has been noticed gambolling in the fields with a large well-developed hare. Such an attachment is most uncommon.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Painting Its Poles: The Janesville Electric Company is painting its poles on River street white, which will add a touch of brightness to that thoroughfare. This action appears to have been suggested by the example of the city, which has had all the fences on its property painted with white cold-water paint, and has brought forth a great deal of favorable comment.

Library Open Evenings: The public library is again open evenings. During the months of July and August the library was closed evenings except on Saturdays. The men's reading room in the basement will not be opened until later, no action having yet been taken in the matter by the library board.

Contractor in City: Mr. Schnell of the firm of Rink & Schnell, the Clinton, Iowa contractors, who put in the brick pavement on North Academy street last fall, was in the city today and called at the office of City Engineer C. V. Kerch. Mr. Schnell's firm is installing sewers and water mains for the city of Savannah, Illinois.

Birth Day Party: A number of the little friends of Master Richard Wells were entertained this afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wells, 522 Chestnut street, in honor of his fourth birthday. The afternoon was delightfully spent with children's games and at the close light refreshments were served.

Campaign Expenses: W. D. North, Edgerton, candidate for assembly, spent $82.54 in his primary campaign according to the last statement filed with the county clerk. The item in the expense account of John T. Atkinson, candidate for county clerk, mentioned in the Gazette Monday and credited to the Clinton Banner should have been credited to Al Smith. The amount was $75 for posting notices and other campaign work. A mistake in reading the account was responsible for the error.

Hold A Picnic: The students of the Rock county training school held a picnic up the river yesterday afternoon and enjoyed games and a delicious supper.

To Apply For Loan: School clerk Fred Borgwardt of the Riversdale district secured papers for application to the state for a loan to aid in building a new school house today, and an application for $1,500 will be forwarded shortly.

Regular Term Day: With over seventy cases on the calendar the September term day in the county court was an unusually busy one. Attorneys J. B. Dow, T. D. Woolsey, and C. D. Rosa of Beloit, and H. M. Richmond of Evansville were here on business in the court.

To Build Cement Apron: The Janesville Electric Company is preparing to rebuild the apron in the spillway, replacing the timber structure with concrete. Construction will be started as soon as the Fourth Avenue bridge is opened to team travel, as the company wishes to haul its gravel from the east side of the river. The cement to be used is already on hand. The power plant has been at its best for some time past, it being unnecessary to use steam in carrying the heaviest loads.

Ten Days For "Hook": William Byrne, better known as "Hook" Byrne, plead guilty in the municipal court this morning to a charge of intoxication and not being able to pay a fine of $5 and costs was sent to jail for ten days.

Break Jail At Juneau: Chief of Police Appleby received a telephone message this morning that four prisoners had broken from the Dodge county jail at Juneau this morning.

$500 Reward Offered: A reward of five hundred dollars is offered for the recovery of jewelry worth several thousand dollars stolen from a summer home at East Harbor, Maine, on August 4, by a porch climber. A proportionate amount of the reward is offered for the recovery of any part of the missing jewelry. The local police have been notified.

WHIPPLE NOMINEE IN RACE FOR SHERIFF

ON FIRST CHOICE BALLOTS—THE SECOND CHOICE RESULTS.

MAY CHANGE RESULTS

Merrill, Maxfield and Lynch Are the Three Low Men and This May Complicate Matters.

While Whipple of Beloit has the heaviest vote on the first choice for sheriff, his lead over Roach his nearest competitor is but 141 and when the second choice votes are canvassed it is possible that Roach may win out.

Lynch, Merrill and Maxfield are eliminated from consideration and their second choice ballots will go to either Whipple or Roach.

Whipple's total vote in the county was 1,182 while Roach polled 1,041, Lynch 412, Whipple carried Beloit and Roach Janesville. The vote throughout the county districts was exceptionally light owing to the threshing and farm work although in some districts there was a heavy vote polled.

The vote in the cities was also light. The following is the table of first choice votes of the five candidates.

Their Proper Place.

The folks who are perpetually protesting that their consciences are clear and that they have nothing for which to reproach themselves are generally in a bad way, for the probability is that their much-vaunted consciences have stopped working and are of no further use. Such people never allow that they are in the wrong; their favorite sentence is, "I told you so!" and their proper place is on a desert island with thick-skinned turtles for boon companions.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION HAS ANNUAL MEETING.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

Dundee, Sept. 4.—The annual meeting of the British Association, which is the most important event of the year in connection with scientific research in the United Kingdom, began its sessions today in Kinnaird Hall in this city. Professor E. A. Shaffer, the eminent Edinburgh physiologist, called the gathering to order and delivered his presidential address. The address was on the subject of the origin of life and was probably the most remarkable that has been delivered before the association since that containing the announcement of the Oxford meeting nearly twenty years ago.

Sacredglo English Boys.

Attracted by the tolling of the bells of the parish church of Denby, Derbyshire, England, a bellringer the other day entered the church and found that the candles on the Communion table had been lighted and a bonfire made in the chancel, apparently by boys, the vicar's Bible, hymn books, and loose papers being used as fuel.

TODAY'S EVANSVILLE NEWS

SCHEDULE THURSDAY AS EVANSVILLE DAY AT THE COUNTY FAIR

Stores Closed Today and Tomorrow Fair Attendance Reported
This Afternoon—Judging
Is Begun.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Sept. 4.—Between two and three thousand persons attended the county fair here today. This is considered a fair attendance but tomorrow will be the big day, as it has been scheduled as Evansville day. The local stores are closed today and tomorrow to allow owners and employees to attend the fair.

Three Janesville horses were entered in the races this afternoon: Charley Howe, owned by Chas. Schaller; Six Cylinder Pen owned by J. M. Hugunin; and The Rox, owned by E. Ray Lloyd. Other horses were Agnes K, owned by C. T. Smith of Beloit; and Roxie Leland owned by Jas. Alden, Monroe.

The aeroplane flights are attracting much interest and are exceedingly spectacular. Aviator Mitchell in his Wright machine ascends several thousand feet into the air and makes some sensational dips and maneuvers. The work of judging exhibits began this morning and first awards were made in the children's departments. Following are the prize winners:

Mildred Blakely, aged 12, 1st on doll's outfit; 1st on hem-stitched towel; 1st on hand-made pillow slip; 1st on fancy apron; 2nd on neatest patch on garment; 2nd on plain cake; 3rd on hand-made handkerchief; 3rd on kitchen apron.

Dorothy Axtell, aged 12, 3rd on embroidered towel.

Helen Meyers, aged 12, 1st on chocolate loaf cake; 1st on nut fudge; 3rd on plain fudge; 1st on dressed doll.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

IN DEFENSE OF "OLD MAIDS".

"I HAVE already got to the point of considering that there is no more respectable character on this earth than an unmarried woman who makes her own way through life, quietly, perseveringly, without support of husband or brother, and who, having attained the age of forty or upwards, retains a well regulated mind, a disposition to enjoy simple pleasures, and fortitude to support inevitable pains, sympathy with the suffering of others, and willingness to relieve want as far as means allow."—Charlotte Bronte.

A western minister has recently gotten all the notoriety he could possibly have desired by saying that bachelors and old maids should be exiled to a desert island there to reflect on their state as a waste of humanity.

Yesterday I recalled that brilliant statement and wished with all my heart that its author could have sat beside me on the trolley car.

I was riding in town on one of the morning cars. It was the hour at which most of the passengers are workers in shops and offices on their way to the day's imprisonment, but there was one woman with a little child in her arms. I did not happen to see the child because she was so placed as to be put off my direct line of vision, but I saw her reflected in the faces of three women opposite me. These three women were evidently going to work in shops or offices; they were middle-aged and apparently of that criminal class against which the minister preached. And yet, as I say, without being able to see that baby myself, I knew somewhere by the strange, sweet look which came over those three faces and the absorbed way in which they gazed across the aisle,

If that minister could have sat beside me, I don't think even the desire for notoriety could have persuaded him to talk about old maids that way again.

If there is any more ridiculous idea than this notion that the average old maid dislikes children and deliberately chooses a single existence because she has a pickle lime temperament, in spite of eager protests on the part of desirable males, I have yet to meet it. And yet it seems to be a favorite theory both with men and with safely married females.

Silly and nonsensical! To be sure there aren't many women who never had a chance! But there are plenty of women who haven't had a chance to marry a man whom they could respect and like and trust—to say nothing of love. And is a woman to be blamed for not snapping up anything at all in preference to remaining single? Poor bachelor maids, how unfairly we treat them, alternately we make fun of them for being ready to snatched at a straw, and preach against them for not being ready to.

This western minister's statement was more widely quoted than it would otherwise have been because a good and wise bachelor girl, widely known as and widely loved, has rebuked it. "If I had found a suitable help-mate I might have spent my money in a different way which might not have done as much good as it does now," says Helen Gould. "Please think this over and before preaching on this subject again make up your mind that there is some good in living a single life."

The sanity and dignity of that quiet statement is as soothsaying after that foolish tirade as silence after a tumult.

To be sure there may be some silly, cold-hearted, child-hating old maids, but I don't believe they are any more common than silly, cold-hearted, child-hating married women, nor half so common as splendid, brave-hearted, self-sacrificing old maids.

PRESERVES AND PICKLES.

The following are tried and true recipes used by many old and experienced housekeepers:

To Prepare Quinces.—Pare and core. Be sure to get out all the seeds. Boil the skins and cores one hour, then strain through a cloth; boil the quinces in this juice until tender; drain them out; add the weight of quinces in sugar, boil and skin, then put in the quinces and cook slowly three hours.

Tomato Butter.—To one quart of tomato add a pint of apple, cook and put through a sieve; add a quart of sugar and cinnamon to taste. Cook until thick.

Gooseberry Cateup.—Six quarts of berries, nine pounds of sugar, one pint of vinegar, one tablespoonful each of cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Put one-half of the vinegar on the berries and cook until nearly done; strain, add the rest of the vinegar and spices and cook slowly three hours.

Spiced Grapes.—To one pound of grapes add one-half pound of sugar, two teaspoonsfuls of cinnamon, two of cloves and one of allspice. Cook the pulp and skins separately, the skins having to cook much longer, then add the pulp and spiced.

Chopped Pickle.—One peck of green tomatoes, one dozen red peppers chopped fine; cover with salt and let stand twenty-four hours; drain and squeeze dry; add a head of cabbage, a bunch of celery chopped fine, and one pint of grated horseradish, a teaspoonful of cloves, a tablespoonful of mustard seed, salt to taste and a pint of small cucumbers. Cover with cold cider vinegar. Seal in jars for winter use.

Peach Butter.—Pare and cut a peck of peaches in small pieces, add two quarts of cider boiled, two tablespoonsfuls of lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly; add sugar if not sufficiently sweet. Fill jars and seal.

Sweet Tomato Pickle.—Four quarts of green tomatoes sliced, four onions sliced, a half cup of salt. Let stand over night. Drain, add a quart of water, pint of vinegar and two pounds of brown sugar. Cook until soft, place in an open stone jar, cover with a plate.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

What is Your Motto?

THE mother was sitting sewing, and in front of her paced her small boy, bravely announcing he was her knight and that he would protect her from all danger.

"What motto have you emblazoned on your shield?" she asked gravely, to humor his fancy.

The little fellow thought a moment, and then remembering some of her admonitions when he had been careless, said, "Who breaks, pays."

That's a good motto for any one to take through life, isn't it? For the girl who thinks she can break laws of health or morals, for the husband or wife who thinks marriage vows can be broken with impunity, for any one who cherishes the delusion he can break without paying. It is a thought that will straighten them up and bring them back to the right course, when they are thinking of straying.

And they might add to it the thought that not only do they pay, but others pay. The innocent often pay as high a price, sometimes a higher, than the guilty. And the man or woman, who, perhaps, thinks he is willing to pay the price of breakage, may pause when he thinks what he is compelling others to pay.

A woman foremost in good works had for her motto, "Never frown, never sigh, keep step!" How often has this little motto been an actual cheering friend to her when perplexities or troubles pressed? "Keep step" is enough in itself to make the blood bound and the whole body feel invigorated.

Another woman chose the one word "Integrity," and it lifted her over many hard places.

Very practical people may think such things are foolishness. But just try such a little silent helper and see if you are not somewhat amazed at the good results that ensue.

Study out what is your special need, what special tonic or stimulant is necessary to combat your most pronounced weakness. Then choose a motto to supply it. And when you feel the need of help in the matter, call your little motto to your aid, and dwell on it. You will find the strength coming to hold you true to your right course.

For there are many forces in this world that we dream not yet of. And the power of a motto, when we phrase it in this, what seems to many, childish form, is one of them. For inside the form is a force connected with unseen forces; and by thinking upon this motto we connect this force with our real self. And then comes directly to us strength, or whatever it is we need, to spur us on to the duty or work that waits.

So the question of a motto reaches deeper and takes hold of more tremendous things than seems on the surface. And since we can get help in this way, why not study out just what is our need, choose a motto to embody it, and through the medium of it, connect up with the thought forces of the universe? The experiment is worth a trial any way.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

produced by evaporation, and crystallization from water impregnated by saline ingredients. The pure rock salt is best of all, sea salt is next, and then that obtained from saline springs.

All food contains salt. If it did not you would starve to death, for salt is necessary for the formation of gastric juice, without which there can be no digestion and without digestion nutrition is impossible. This condiment is one of the few proper stimulants for a weak digestion.

Common salt or table salt is produced from rock salt or from natural brine or from springs and wells by evaporation. Some salt wells and mines have wonderful histories. Those at Ostia, at the mouth of the Tiber, were controlled by the Roman government and the revenue derived from them contributed materially to the support of Rome. Venice, in more recent times, was noted for her salt works, to which she owes much of her maritime power.

Vegetarians argue that salt is not indispensable to health, "as North American Indians, previous to their acquaintance with Europeans, did not add it to their food but derived from the food itself sufficient for their need. Persons who will omit salt, and all condiments," claim these food-faddists, "will find that their food contains many flavors of which they were unaware when the presence of salt had deadened them." It has been recently discovered that these Indians who have been held up as such model dieticians used in the place of salt the ashes of hickory wood and that scurvy and worse troubles affected them when this condiment was omitted.

The renowned Jesuit, Lemoyne, discovered the Onondaga salt mines in 1700, and immediately a profitable trade was opened up by these Indians with Quebec and Montreal. These same mines were being worked today and three million barrels of salt were taken out last year.

The old windmills can still be seen on Long Island, where salt was made by exposing sea water in shallow vats to the air and sun from 1620 until a generation ago. Modern methods have superseded the crude processes of evaporation and we now produce the finest, whitest, saltiest salt in the world, but we do not manufacture enough to supply our needs. We annually consume fifty million bushels and import almost half of it.

Common salt is simply chloride of sodium, a compound of one atom of sodium and one atom of chlorine, but it is seldom found in a pure state, the principal impurities being sulphate of lime, oxide of iron and clay. It is found native in the earth or is dust, dirt and flies, should be condemned, in fact should be prohibited by law, if the public will not see to it by withdrawing their patronage, and explaining why.

Gross perceptible dirt is always abhorrent. So in the matter of protecting food exposed as above described, food dealers concerned are very often found decidedly opposed to regulations as to covering or keeping within doors such wares as should be protected from street dust—and store dust.

The city street dust settling upon these foods is of the usual filthy composition, containing manure, dried saliva, pus, typhoid, tubercular and dozens of other bacteria; and in summer, how about the nimble little fly flitting back and forth from the indecent filth of the gutter, alley, barns, and garbage cans? His feet and legs are, loaded with the matter from these places, and he daintily wipes his feet on all foods that are exposed.

The proprietor of the market could attract attention to his wares and prices just as effectively by using display cards on the walls and in his windows. Ditto, the grocery man.

I suggest that my readers, those who do the shopping or buying, start a movement in their town to clean up the grocery stores and meat markets, if they need it along the lines here suggested.

LESLIE D. SMITH, M. D.

THE FAMILY GROCERY AND MARKET

I read somewhere recently of a woman who brought about a revolution in the sanitary (or rather insanitary) methods of conducting the grocery stores and meat markets in the town in which she lived. When she bought delicate articles she would ask the clerk to put waxed paper in the scales before weighing them, at the same time explaining why. She always insisted on having any articles that are easily contaminated properly wrapped. She went out among her neighbors and friends, and told them how cleanly they were at this particular store. Of course, business at that store picked up.

The management was quick to learn the cause of their increased popularity, and at once established cleanly and sanitary methods in their store.

Other stores, through necessity, soon "caught on" and fell in line, and soon were the grocery stores and meat markets of this town cleaned up.

I rather believe one could get a pretty good idea of what sort of people live in a town or neighborhood just by visiting the grocery stores and meat markets and noting the sanitary precautions and conditions.

The practice of displaying meats, vegetables, and other foods out on the sidewalks and in the store, without any protection whatever from the elements, is a definite invitation to disease.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

GASOLINE.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

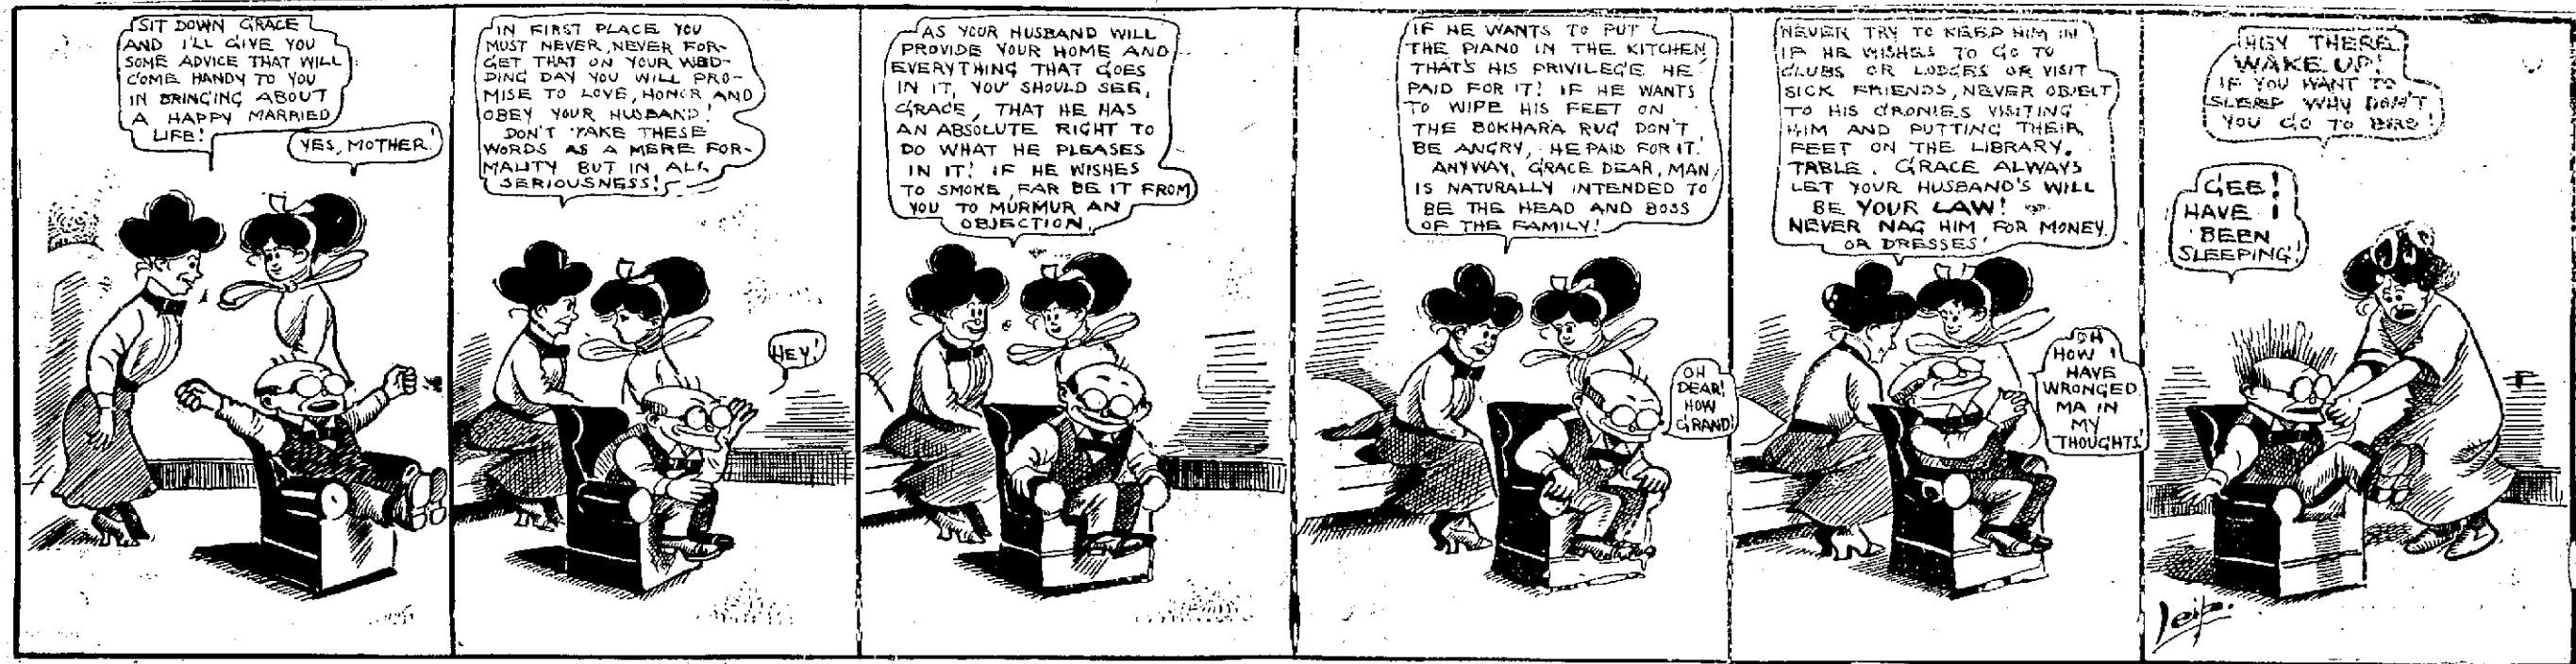

GASOLINE is a pale, harmless-looking fluid which throws off untiring death and the subtle odor of the Standard Oil Company. It looks like water, but is never used as a beverage more than once.

There are several grades of gasoline, nearly all of which are good for a funeral or when used to start a fire in the kitchen stove. The better grades are not over 65 per cent water.

Gasoline is used for all kinds of domestic purposes, except flavoring. It is good for the blushing youth to a pair of aged and decrepit pants and enable a man to go about looking like Nat C. Goodwin just prior to his next marriage. If it were not for gasoline, many a husband would be going around in spotted trousers and a depressed look.

Gasoline is a volatile liquid and evaporates at the rate of a mile in 55 seconds. People who buy it in 55 gallon lots notice that it evaporates faster between the hardware store and the house than anywhere else.

The price of gasoline is regulated by supply and demand just as is the price of steel rails and beef on the hoof. Whenever the demand for college gymnastics exceeds the supply on hand, the price of gasoline ascends in a very precise and irritating manner. If you own an automobile, this price also depends upon how far you are from home and the elastic conscience of the garage proprietor.

"Twelve servants!" ejaculated Ham almost with a groan. "Well, that don't seem to me right."

They were close to the house now and silence fell on them, as though the antagonism of its owners was exhaled upon them from the mansion's aggressive bulk, like an unspoken curse. They felt overawed, and at the same time proud that one of their number should have even the most distant affiliations with a family too exclusive to know her. The women with their more responsive and sensitive natures felt it more delicately than Josh, who blunderingly expressed one of the thoughts of the moment by remarking,

"Some day you'll live in there, Berny, and beos the twelve servants."

"Rats!" said Berny, giving her head an angry toss. "I'd rather live in my flat and boss Sing."

Josh's whistle of facetious incredulity died away incomplete, for at that moment the hall door opened and a portly masculine shape emerged upon the porch. Berny, at the first glance, was not sure of its identity, but her doubts were dispelled by her brother-in-law's quick sentence, delivered on the rise of a surprised breath.

"Bill Cannon, by gum! What's he doing there?"

This name, as powerful to conjure with in the city as in the mining-camps, cast its instantaneous spell upon the sisters, who stared avid-eyed upon the great man. He for his part seemed oblivious to their glances and to their presence. He stood on the top step for a musing moment, looking down with that sort of filmy fixity of gaze which is noticeable in the glance of the restful eagle. His appearance was a last crowning touch to the proud, unapproachable distinction of the Ryans.

"Don't he look as if he was thinking?" said Hazel in a whisper. "I wonder what's on his mind."

"Probably that Monday's pay-day and he don't know whether he can scratch through," said the jocose Josh. Berny did not say anything. She felt the interest in Cannon that she did in all conquering, successful people, and in her heart it gave her a sense of added importance to think that the family she had married into and who refused to know her was on friendly terms with the Bonanza King.

A half-hour later they had found seats in front of the band stand in the park, and settling themselves with a great rustling and preening of plumage, prepared to enjoy the music. Hannah and Pearl were given two chairs at the end of a row, and Hazel and Berny, with Josh as escort, secured four on the line immediately behind. Dominick had not yet appeared, so the sisters spread their skirts over a vacant seat between them, and Berny, in the intervals of inspecting the people around her, sent exploring glances about for the tall figure of her husband.

She was very fond of the park and band stand on such Sunday afternoons. To go there had been one of the great diversions of her girlhood. She loved to look at this holiday gathering of all types, among which her own class was largely represented. The outdoor amphitheater of filled benches was to her what the ball-room and the glittering horseshoe at the opera are to the woman of society. She saw many old friends among the throng, girls who had been contemporaries of hers when she had first "gone to work" and had long since married in their own world and now dragged children by the hand. She looked them over with an almost passionate curiosity, discomfited to see the fresh youth of some, and pleased to note that others looked weighed down with maternal cares.

Berny regarded women who had children as fools, and the children grouped about these mothers of her own age—three and four sometimes, with the husband carrying a baby—were to her only annoying, burdensome creatures.

or coloring than from any particular beauty of feature. The head with its gravely-traveling glance continued to turn till Berny had the satisfaction of seeing the face in three-quarters. A moment later the moving eyes lighted indifferently, brusquely, as though checked by the imperative stoppage of regulating machinery.

Only a person watching closely would have noticed it, but Berny was watching with the most vigilant close-ness. She saw, the infusion of a new and keener interest transform the glance, concentrate its lazy, diffused attention into something that had the sharpness and suddenness of a leaping flame. The next moment a flood of color rose clearly pink over the face, and then, most surprising of all, the lady bent her head in a grave, deliberate bow.

Berny turned, startled—and in a vague, undefined way, disturbed, too—to see who had been the object of this salutation. To her astonishment it was Dominick. As she looked at him, he replaced his hat and she saw to the augmentation of that vague sense of disturbance—that he was as pale as the bowing woman was pink.

"Dominick," she exclaimed, "who's that?"

"Miss Cannon," he said in a low tone.

"Rose Cannon?" hissed Hazel on the other side of him, her face thrust forward.

Berny turned, startled.

ward, and tense in the interest of the moment, "Bill Cannon's daughter?"

"Yes. I met her at Antelope."

"Berny, did you see her dress?" Hazel hung over her brother-in-law in her excitement. "That's straight from Paris, I'll bet you a dollar."

"Yes, I saw it," said Berny in a voice that did not sound particularly exhilarated; "maybe it is."

She looked back at Miss Cannon who had turned away and was moving off through the crowd with her escort. Then she leaned toward Dominick. His voice had not sounded natural; as she placed her arm against his she could feel that he trembled.

She said nothing but settled back in her chair, dryly swallowing. In those few past moments her whole world had undergone a revolution that left her feeling dazed and a little sick.

It was as if the earth had suddenly whirled around and she had come up panting and clutching among familiar things reversed and upset. In an instantaneous flash of illumination she saw everything—the look in the woman's eyes, her rush of color, Dominick's voice, his expression, the trembling of his arm—it was all perfectly plain! This was the girl he had been shut in Antelope with for three weeks. Now she knew what the change was, the inexplicable, mysterious change that had so puzzled her.

She felt bewildered, and under her bewilderment a pain, a fierce, unfamiliar pain, gripped her. She did not for the moment say anything or want to speak, and she felt as a child does who is dazed and stupefied by an unexpected assault of ill treatment.

The slight sensation of inward sinking, that made her feel a little sick, continued and she sat in a chilled and drooping silence, all her bridling conceal in herself and her fine clothes stricken suddenly out of her.

She heard Hazel asking Dominick questions about Miss Cannon, and she heard Dominick's answers, brief and given with a reticent doggedness. Then Hazel asked him for the time and she was conscious of his elbow pressing against her arm as he felt for his watch. As he drew it out and held it toward the questioner, Berny suddenly leaned forward, and, catching his hand with the watch in it, turned its face toward her. The hand beneath hers was cold, and shook. She let it go and again sank back in her chair. The feeling of sickness grew stronger and was augmented by a sense of physical feebleness, of being tremulous and cold deep down in her bones.

Hazel rose to her feet, shaking her skirts into place.

"Let's go on," she said. "It's getting chilly. Come along, Josh. I suppose if you were let alone, you'd sit here till sundown listening to the music in a trance."

Dominick and Josh rose and there was an adjusting and putting-on-of wraps. Berny still sat motionless, her hands, still in their tight gloves, lying open on her lap.

"Come along, Berny," said Hazel. "It's too cold to sit here any longer. Why, how funny you look, all pale and shivering up! You're as bad as Josh. You and he ought to have married each other. You'd have been a prize couple."

Josh laughed loudly at this sally, leaning round the figure of his wife to present his foolish, good-humored face, creased with a grin, to Berny.

"Are you willing, Berny?" he cried gaily. "I can get a divorce whenever you say. It will be dead easy; brutal and inhuman treatment. Just say the word!"

"There'll be brutal and inhuman treatment if you don't move on and stop blocking the way," Josh McCrae said Hazel severely. "I want to go out that side and there you are right in the path, trying to be funny."

The cheerful Josh, still laughing, turned and moved onward between the seats, the others following him. The mass of the crowd was not yet leaving, and as the little group moved forward in a straggling line toward the drive, the exciting opening of the William Tell Overture boomed out from the sounding board. It was a favorite piece, and they left lingeringly, Hazel and Josh particularly fascinated, with heads turned and ears trained on the band. Josh's hand, passed through his wife's arm, affectionately pressed her against his side, for despite the sharpness of their reprimands they were the most loving of couples.

Berny was the last of the line. In the flurry of departure her silence had passed unnoticed, and that she should thus lag at the tail of the procession was not in any way remarkable, as, at the best of times, she was not much of a walker and in her high-heeled Sunday shoes her progress was always deliberate.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Janesville Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Janesville, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Janesville kidney sufferers.

Mrs. Joseph Gower, 302 Eastern Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "The benefit I received from Doan's Kidney Pills when I used them some years ago has been permanent. I willingly confirm my former endorsement of this remedy. I was afflicted with kidney complaint for several weeks and was feeling miserable in every way when a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at the People's Drug Co., and the contents of three boxes sufficed to rid me of my trouble. I never fail to advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills when I hear anyone complaining of weak kidneys."

Such unconsciousness added the distinction of indifference to the already marked figure. Berny wondered more than ever who it was and longed to see the averted face. She was about to lean across Dominick and attract Hazel's attention by a poking finger directed against her knee, when the woman, with a word to her companion, moved her head and let a slow glance sweep over the rows of faces.

"Hazel," Berny hissed across Dominick, "look at that girl. Who is she?" She did not divert her eyes from the woman's face, which she now saw in profile. It was pretty, she thought, more from a rich, illuminated purity

Being Well Born.

The problem of being well born has appealed to philosophers and statesmen in all times. The Jews guarded the birthright in ways that are largely responsible for the virile strength of the race. The Spartans secured strong warriors, but failed to develop other qualities. Plato definitely worked out plans to secure right conditions of birth. The eugenic conscience of the Romans made them the rulers of the world.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 4, 1872—A Pleasant Party. A large party was held at the residence of Mrs. Winans, just outside the city limits on Milton avenue, last evening. This affair was gotten up as a sort of an evening picnic and the handsome grounds which surround Mrs. Winans' residence were brilliantly lighted for the occasion. A platform was erected for dancing, and under the inspiring music of the Janesville quadrille band that pleasurable pastime was indulged in until eleven o'clock, when the rain storm compelled the assembled guests to finish the evening's pleasure within doors.

School Census. J. H. Balch has completed the annual school census and his figures foot up as follows:

First Ward,	756
Second Ward,	753
Third Ward,	595
Fourth Ward,	941
Fifth Ward,	508
Total	3553

The above include all the children in this city between the ages of four and twenty years. Mr. Balch has performed his difficult task expeditiously and carefully and though the past year was not a very good one for children the figures do not fall much below those made at the last annual school census.

It was a French news writer that wrote: "Suffer yourselves to be hanged if need be, but publish your opinions;" but in this country writers in early times faced imprisonment and the pillory again and again in order to make their views public, and whatever these may have been, it must be conceded that they deserve credit for courage, at least, in having laid the foundation of that freedom which the press of this country enjoys.—London Globe.

Vegetable fibre, or chin vegetal, is made from leaves of a dwarf palm (Chamaerops humilis), which clings to the soil tenaciously.
